

INCLUSIVITY IN ACTION ACTIVITY SHEET

Read about the people described in the scenarios and come up with ways that other students and their school can be more inclusive.

Adil I'm one of the only Muslim students in my school and not everyone knows much about my religion. I pray several times every day and I also take part in Ramadan, where I have to fast during daylight hours for a month.

There's not a proper place for me to pray, so I have to use any empty room I can find, but sometimes people walk in by mistake which is awkward. Ramadan is so tough because I have to go to lunch and watch everyone eat. It would be nice to have a bit more respect and understanding!

Emma I came out as a lesbian last year but I know there are other gay students who don't want to come out in case they're treated differently. Most people are supportive, and I just ignore anyone who has a problem with me.

I want to start an LGBTQIA+ support group, but so far I'm finding it hard to recruit people and need some help from teachers too otherwise it's never going to happen!

Elijah I'm a wheelchair user and I'm really active outside of school. I play in a wheelchair rugby team and do sprints at my local track.

But when it comes to school sports, I'm usually told to sit it out. And don't even get me started on sports day! It's so frustrating.

How can other students be inclusive?	How can the school be more inclusive?

Extension: can you think of other groups with a proteted characteristic who schools and students could act more inclusively towards? How could they do this?
